Professor Dan Lake
Political Science Department

Speaking on

“The Politics of the Gaza War”

While the current war in Gaza can be thought of as simply the latest stage in a long struggle, due to the sheer scale of its violence it is worth a closer look. In this presentation, Professor Lake will explore the political aspects of this conflict. Topics will include why Hamas carried out such a large terrorist attack when they did, why Israel responded with a full-scale invasion of Gaza, why it has been difficult to negotiate a cease-fire, and the prospects of establishing a durable peace after this war is over.
